

What We Do

- Support programs who prevent future violence by intervening with individuals who use violence in intimate relationships.
- Discuss ways to improve the coordinated community response to Intimate Partner Violence.
- Promote evidence-based, best practices in Abuse Intervention.
- Partner on AIP research and evaluation.
- Offer peer support and advocacy for AIPs through:
 - Education;
 - Technical assistance;
 - Collaboration with service providers and criminal justice professionals.

Maryland Abuse Intervention Collaborative

Who We Are

A statewide network of experienced professionals committed to supporting Abuse Intervention Programs (AIPs) as they provide services for those who use violence in their intimate partner relationships.

Our Goals

- Ensure there are quality & effective Abuse Intervention Programs throughout MD.
- Improve victim safety.
- Promote accountability and responsibility for those who use violence in their relationships.
- Eliminate Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) & abuse.

Research

Research shows that despite being under-resourced, Maryland AIPs are effective in reducing crime.

People who complete an AIP have significantly lower rates of recidivism for all criminal charges.

A recent evaluation of Maryland's AIPs examined recidivism data for 1900 offenders.

Compared to those who failed to complete, those who completed an AIP had:

25-35%

Fewer Criminal Recidivism Offenses

40%

Completed AIP

16-30%

Fewer Violent Offenses

We Encourage Participation From:

- AIPs
- Parole & Probation
- Judicial Staff
- State's Attorneys
- The Department of Social Services
- Public Defenders
- Victim Advocates
- Mental Health Programs
- Students/Interns in Behavioral Health
- Other Stakeholders
