

Corporal Sexton is a seasoned law enforcement professional with an unwavering commitment to service. Graduating from the academy in 1995, he dedicated 28 years of his life to the Maryland State Police (MSP). His family legacy of law enforcement, with his father, brother, and uncle retiring from MSP, instilled in him a profound sense of duty.

Serving at the North East Barrack for 13 years, Corporal Sexton became known for his dedication to the communities he served. In 2007, he transitioned to the Maryland State Police Criminal Enforcement Division, where he has been a dedicated supervisor for over a decade. His sharp attention to detail, extensive knowledge of criminal procedures, and collaborative approach have been instrumental in resolving complex cases.

Corporal Sexton's commitment to justice extends beyond his professional life. He has actively served on the Domestic Violence Fatality Review Board, working tirelessly to address and prevent domestic violence. Additionally, he has been an integral part of the Sexual Assault Response Team, supporting survivors of sexual assault. For over thirty years, he has shared a loving marriage with his wife and raised three children, instilling in them the same values of integrity and commitment that define his law enforcement legacy. In June 2025, he will retire with over 30 years of law enforcement experience, leaving behind a legacy of excellence in the Maryland State Police, marked by dedication, a family tradition of service, and a commitment to the citizens of Maryland.
